

Produce

Weather during this time of year can bring added volatility to the produce markets. The roma tomato markets are priced above a year ago due in part to hot temperatures, which may be challenging production. Tomato prices usually fade during July but rise in August. Avocado prices remain well below year ago levels on adequate supplies and soft food service demand. Yet, Hass avocado prices since 2015 have averaged 9.3% higher in July compared to June. Potato supplies are fairly tight due in part to last year's light harvest which can support prices.
